- Earnings as an electrician
- Employment in commercial property

Advice to Determine the Beneficial Owner for 'Companies' i.e. Companies, Institutions and Organisations:

Section (A)

The beneficial owner(s) of the 'company' is/are the physical person(s) who is/are economically in control of the 'company' and able to make independently the important decisions. If there is a predominant shareholder then this person is the decision maker and the managing director is only the executor of the decisions.

If the 'company' is quoted on the stock market, it is assumed that the shareholders are scattered and therefore the managing director and/or the board of directors are the decision makers. However, the managing director must in this case state that the 'company' has been acting, in relations with BCCI, on its own behalf and not as trustee for another person.

If the managing director is the real decision maker then the document should be marked with the seal of the 'company' and signed by the managing director. A copy of the managing director's passport should be attached.

Section (B)

Under the declaration of the origin of funds, the beneficial owner must answer the question where the money comes from in economic terms, for example a brief description of the economic activities of the 'company' that generated the deposited funds and not the account from where the monies were transferred.
